MLA Citation Format: Web Resources

Entire Web Site

Title of Web Site. Publisher, Publication Date, URL.

In-text citation:
According to the American Nurses Association, “this is a citation”.
OR
“This is a citation” (American Nurses Association).

So let’s say I want to cite this CDC website: http://www.cdc.gov/diabetes/basics/index.html

One option is to use this format:

Governmental Agency as Author. “Title of Page.” Title of Web Site, Publication Date, URL.

United States, Department of Health and Human Services, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.
“Basics about Diabetes.” Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 31 Mar. 2015,

In-text citation:
“This is a citation” (United States, Dept. of Health and Human Services).

Another possible option is to leave off any author. I recommend this when you are using two or more web source with the same “author”, especially government entities. Use the government agency as the Publisher.

“Basics about Diabetes.” Diabetes Home, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 31 Mar. 2015,

In-text citation:
According to “Basics about Diabetes”, “this is a citation”.
OR
“This is a citation” (“Basics”).
YouTube Video

Author. “Title of Video.” Title of Web Site, Publication Date, URL.

In-text citation:
In the video posted by sayerb123, “this is a citation”.
OR
“This is a citation” (sayerb123).
